

Personalize Educator Growth, Recognize and Reward Competency Achievement

Research has shown the best way schools can improve student outcomes is through maximizing educator effectiveness. But while teachers have different learning needs, they often receive professional development through one-size-fits all offerings, and are recognized for their professional development based almost entirely on attendance and seat time.

BloomBoard's personalized, competency-based professional development platform provides an effective way for district leaders to understand where educators need support, provide personalized learning opportunities specific to their growth goals, and recognize them for skills they've demonstrated. BloomBoard offers:

Personalized Professional Development

Build capacity and empower educators to personalize their own learning paths through collections of professional development content organized by problems of practice. Collections include high-quality content, vetted and curated by experienced educators. Content can be customized to foster discussion and progress toward district-wide goals.

Competency-based Recognition through Micro-credentials

Recognize and reward educators for demonstrating competence in a specific skill or skill set through micro-credentials, a digital form of certification based on a robust, evidence-based approach. BloomBoard has partnered with Digital Promise to offer over 120 micro-credentials, allowing educators to demonstrate their ability to apply their learning in their practice.

Induction and Support Programs

Train and prepare teachers and school leaders through our standards-aligned programs that include induction for teachers and principals, early literacy, ELL/ESL, STEM, digital literacy, and other support programs for teachers, coaches and administrators, all of which can be customized to your district's specific needs.

To ensure program effectiveness, BloomBoard also offers a dedicated team of learning strategists who can work with you to customize professional development to your district's goals and guide your faculty and staff in their transformation to competency-based learners.
